

Antero Lopes is a senior international executive with 40 years of national and international experience, including nearly three decades in senior leadership functions within the United Nations. He has served in complex, multidimensional peace operations across Europe, Africa and Asia, including UNMIK (about 6 years in Kosovo) and UNPROFOR (2 years in Croatia and Bosnia & Herzegovina), combining strategic leadership with operational command, bringing extensive experience engaging at senior political and institutional level with governments. He has a solid understanding of EU external action, CFSP and CSDP frameworks. He aligns political strategy with operations, ensuring coherence and impact. His leadership promotes integrity, inclusion, accountability and team performance.

His expertise and experience span diplomacy, rule of law, security sector governance, crisis management, mediation and institutional reform. He has led large multidisciplinary and multinational teams in high-pressure and politically sensitive environments. He has effectively managed operations, human resources, policy and reform processes, leading mission transitions and reconfigurations, driving cost-effective performance and results. He demonstrates strong mediation, negotiation, decision-making and analytical skills under pressure, and operates effectively at the nexus of politics, security and justice, strengthening host-country institutions.

He holds advanced degrees in political science, international relations, and European studies, including from Lisbon university and the College of Europe (Bruges), and completed senior training in governance at Harvard University.
